INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN SHEPHERD CASE

Lawyer and Doctor Held for Murder By Grand Jury.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Mar. 18.—William D. Shepherd and Charles C. Faiman were charged with the murder of William Nelson McClinck, Shepherd's foster son, in an indictment returned today by the county grand jury.

The indictment returned before Judge Justice Hopkins of the Criminal Court, charged that Shepherd and Faiman, the latter head of a science school, who has confessed, the state's attorney has announced that he charged Shepherd with the murder of McClinck typhoid germs to get the boy's $100,000 estate, inoculated the victim with typhoid bacilli.

The indictment further charged that Faiman, who is a doctor, conspired with Shepherd to introduce typhoid germs into the young millionaire when he had made a will leaving his $100,000 to Shepherd, was conspired by prosecutors to be introduced last night by Robert White, former student at Faiman's school, who identified Shepherd as the man who attended the school in the fall of 1923.

The grand jury also returned an indictment against Faiman, who is a doctor, for the same offense.

Shepherd's Usual Reply.
The accused man made the same denial of White's story that he has made of Faiman's story. He said that Faiman, former attaché of the school who said Shepherd had written regarding conspires.

"You're a liar," Shepherd shouted at the grand jury.

Further corroboration of Faiman's statement that $100,000 had been fixed by Shepherd and himself as his portion of the fortune if their plans were successful, was added by a prosecutor, thought, in a letter showing that Faiman planned $100,000 worth of improvements for his school immediately after the rich orphan's death.

Attorneys for Isabelle Ford, McClinck's fiancée who waited to marry him when he died, and who was left an $80,000 annuity in his will, said they could contend that Miss Ford was entitled to the same share of the estate as if she had actually married him under a construction of the law by which she might be regarded as his equitable widow. They were ready to ask for a continuance when the petition of Shepherd to probate the will came up in probate court today.

Cousins Contest Will.
Ten cousins of McClinck who have attacked the will on grounds that Shepherd used undue influence, have announced through attorneys that their intention should be upheld. They are asking for a continuance for which the will provided.

Faiman, erstwhile delivery wagon driver, undertaker and collection agent, signed a waiver of immunity before he told his story to the grand jury. Harry Olson, municipal chief justice, who started the investigation of McClinck's death shortly after the coroner was questioned by the grand jury. After him were questioned Dr. Foshier, who told the coroner's jury of Shepherd's questioning him regarding germs and subtle poisons and Marching.

Plan Two Exhumations.
Exhumation of the bodies of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClinck, mother of the orphan, and of Dr. Oscar Olson, husband of Judge Olson, who died suddenly after eating fruit brought him by Shepherd when the physician was mildly indisposed, was planned by state's authorities. In a statement last night, Judge Olson said he believed his brother had been poisoned. He said his investigations would continue and findings of them would be turned over to the state's attorney.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Shepherd, who was a co-guardian with Attorney A. F. Reichmann of young McClinck, reiterated her belief in Shepherd's innocence and planned for his defense if he should be brought to trial.

She declared the case against her husband "is the work of enemies, trying to ruin us and get Billy's money." She suggested Clarence Darrow as a probable attorney for her husband.

Shepherd's Lawyer Quits.
Edwin Hedrick, attorney for Shepherd during the coroner's inquest yesterday withdrew from Shepherd's defense.

Disclosures made by Faiman regarding his school resulted today in action by state and federal authorities, who began investigation of Chicago's alleged diploma mills, similar to Faiman's school.

Psychology, through Judge Olson, has played an important part in the investigation of the death of McClinck. It was the judge who presented evidence of Shepherd's alleged interest in germs at the coroner's inquest.

"This is not a hanging case," Olson has said.

Judge Olson, in his youth, knew Mrs. Emma Nelson McClinck, mother of the orphan, in St. Mary's kindergarten. When she died suddenly 15 years ago while living with Shepherd and his wife, her son was left in their care. Judge Olson has called into question the deaths of Mrs. McClinck and her own brother, Dr. Olson, and lastly that of the boy. Dr. Olson died three years ago.

Years ago, the judge said, Dr. Olson went a psychiatrist ostensibly to examine the McClincks, but really to observe Shepherd.

"I perceived early that this was a mental case," said the judge.

POLO'S OLDEST ODD FELLOW IS 90 YEARS OLD

Celebrated Birthday at Home There Monday, March 16.

Polo—Henry Wolf, Civil war veteran and the oldest member of the I. O. O. F. in Illinois, celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday at his home here Monday.

Born in York, Pa., Mr. Wolf came to Illinois in 1849 settling at Pennsylvania Corners, Ogle county. He moved to Polo in 1856 and has resided here since that time with the exception of his service in the army between 1861 and 1865.

Mr. Wolf is a charter member of Polo lodge, No. 177, I. O. O. F., having joined August 25, 1856. In 1906 he was a diamond jewel by the Grand Lodge as a reward for his continuous service.

For 55 years, until ill health intervened, Mr. Wolf acted as treasurer of the Polo lodge, a record believed without an equal in the state.

Until last October Mr. Wolf had been active in all community affairs but an illness he suffered at that time necessitated his remaining in his home, where he has since been confined.

Monday's festivities, because of Mr. Wolf's condition, were not elaborate, but hundreds of friends from all parts of the state called or wrote to extend congratulations.

The funeral services for Mrs. W. H. Badger will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home 923 Peoria Ave., Rev. Aubrey Shannon, pastor of the First Methodist church, will conduct the service and burial will be in Prairie Repose Cemetery.

Obituary (Contributed)
Eveline Green was born on a farm near Elizabeth, Pa. Davies County, Illinois, November 17th, 1850. She graduated from Northwestern Female College at Evanston, Ill., in 1870. After graduation she taught in Hedding College, Abingdon, Ill., and the Memphis High School, Memphis, Tenn.

She married Mr. H. Badger, October 1, 1874. She died March 16th, 1925, at her home here in Dixon. She is survived by her husband, Warren H. Badger, of Dixon, and five children: Arthur W. Badger, Morrison, Ill.; Earl W. Badger, Long Beach, Calif.; and Miss Lucy at home. There are also six grandchildren.

About thirty years ago Mrs. Badger suffered a nervous breakdown from which she never recovered. These later years she suffered much and was compelled to lead a retired life. She was passionately fond of flowers, of music, of birds and of books. She loved all the finer things in life. In early womanhood she united with the Methodist church. Her religious belief remained unshaken through her long years of suffering. Her favorite author was Emerson, her favorite verse, not calmly wait, Meekly bear the storms of fate, Duty be thy polar guide, Do the right what 'ere betide, Haste not, rest not, conflicts past, God shall crown thy work at last.

THIRTY-FOUR MEN ENTOMBED IN MINE ARE THOUGHT DEAD

Minor Appointments Before Senate in Its Final Session.

Rescuers Cannot Reach Working Until Late This Evening.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Fairmount, W. Va., March 18.—R. M. Lambie, chief of the mine inspectors of West Virginia, declared in a statement issued shortly after noon today that rescue workers would not be able to reach the 34 entombed miners in mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation before late tonight.

There has been no indication as to whether any of the miners survived the blast which wrecked the mine last night. Rescue crews, however, hold out little hope that any of them will be taken out alive.

Three men were under arrest today in connection with the explosion. The arrest followed the report of a possibility that the disaster had been caused by the explosion of a bomb.

Fairmont, W. Va., March 18.—(By The Associated Press) A hundred or more men pushed their way through the underground recesses of mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation, three miles east of here today in an effort to find 34 miners entombed last night when an explosion wrecked the shaft.

Not since a sheet of flame burst through the opening that extends 300 feet below the ground has anyone heard from the imprisoned men.

Women and children have nuzzled about the mine trying to find word of the entombed men. Only two rescue workers had been able to send word to the surface, and that was not encouraging. R. M. Lambie, chief of mine inspectors of West Virginia, said that the first to go down, they pushed their way to the stable where the mine horses were kept. All the 36 animals were dead. Then they pushed into one of the headings. The air was bad they said. They found no trace of the men.

While not definitely determined, gas was believed to have caused the explosion and late last night mine Superintendent Mitchell, said he did not believe any of the men could be alive.

The mine opened on a non-union basis last October and employs about 250 men.

Last night's explosion was the second within the mine in less than ten years. On October 1, 1914, a gas explosion killed 10 men.

It was thought none of the cutters were nearer than half a mile and most of them probably at a greater distance from the spot where the explosion occurred.

Mr. Lambie reported that the mine was badly damaged and that rescue parties would find it hard going.

At 9:35 o'clock the rescuers were penetrating the wrecked headings leading from the shaft, but no bodies had been reached. Newspapers then carried reports from the immediate vicinity, and it was announced conferences would be held with the correspondents every hour.

At 9:45 o'clock rescue workers had penetrated one mine shaft workings and no bodies had been located.

State Officials Tell Citizens How to Help
Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(By The Associated Press) Businessmen from all sections of Illinois are in Springfield today to help state officials solve the problem of state government. Approximately 500 of them had registered this morning, 200 having come by special train from Chicago.

Speakers to appear at a luncheon to answer their question "how can we help?" Included Governor Len Small, Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling, State Auditor Oscar Nelson, State Treasurer Custer, Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Francis H. Blair, and John H. Camlin, Rockford, president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Tonight the businessmen will hear E. E. Gore, Chicago, chairman of the legislative policy committee lead a discussion of legislative measures, supported by the chamber of commerce.

Grange to Sell Insurance During Summer Vacation
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, March 18.—The Grange, which made the well known sale of ice cream as a result of his labors on an ice wagon last summer to condition himself for football, decided today not to swing the tongs next summer. He's going for insurance and will accept a full time position with the company when he graduates in June next year. The Illinois all-American half back turned down several alluring offers from the movies.

Community High School Discussed by Kiwanis
The Dixon Kiwanis club listened to an extensive argument in favor of a community high school at the regular meeting Tuesday noon.

In the absence of A. W. Leland who was scheduled to address the club but who was called to "Texas on business," H. E. Keyes conducted the discussion. He praised very highly the present program of the school faculty and continued his remarks with arguments in favor of the new school, finishing with a general discussion.

The Telegraph in an item stated that in Dixon to spend a month when it should have read Mr. Brinton, instead.

CONFLICT OVER SENATORS PLAN ON ADJOURNMENT

Minor Appointments Before Senate in Its Final Session.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Mar. 18.—With the Senate's speedy confirmation of John G. Sargent of Vermont to be attorney general, the controversy between President Coolidge and the legislative body over the twice rejected nomination of Charles H. Warren for the post today had taken its place in history.

The nomination of Mr. Sargent, a former attorney general of Vermont and a life long friend of the President, was approved by the Senate in open session by unanimous vote just four hours after publication of correspondence disclosing that Mr. Warren had declined a recess appointment.

The Senate adjourned today after clearing the calendar of a few remaining nominations, a number having been disposed of yesterday.

The new attorney general brings to office, besides his record of public service as attorney general of Vermont from 1908 to 1912 and in other state offices, a reputation among friends as being the "best lawyer in New England."

He accepted the permanent chairmanship of the Vermont republican state convention last spring and the President Coolidge today re-nominated him as chief of a careful watcher and adviser in the New England territory. His only previous appointment was as attorney for the Hamilton Club in Chicago.

His first service in public office was as state's attorney for Windsor County from 1898 to 1903.

President Coolidge today re-nominated Thomas P. Woodlock of New York to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

After another canvass of the situation, it was indicated there might be no attempt to confirm the nomination and that after adjournment had been taken the President would give Mr. Woodlock a recess appointment.

G. L. Kreech of Kansas was nominated to be ambassador to Argentina.

Peter Augustus Jay of Rhode Island, minister to Rumania, was nominated to be ambassador to Argentina.

William J. Donovan of New York, now serving as assistant attorney general, was nominated to be assistant to the attorney general, a post of higher rank, now held by A. T. Seymour of Ohio, who has resigned.

Teachers Victorious in Volley Ball Match
(By Murphy)
Volley ball history was made last evening when the Teachers and Presbyterians met in a terrific combat on the Y floor. From start to finish it was a match that couldn't be beat, replete with good playing and excellent team work. It took five games to determine the winner and not till the close of the fifth was the contest so close and furious was the playing, that the referee was obliged to turn the contest over to the Teachers who took the first, third and fifth games while the Presbyterians got the second and fourth. In total points the Teachers led 59 and the Presbyterians 53. In the first game the score was 15-12 and was the closest as far as points are concerned. This was won by the Pedagogues.

The Presbyterians then beat the Teachers coming in with a 15-5 win for the second. The other games went 15-9, 15-9 and 15-7, the teams alternating in winning the contest. At the close of the fifth game the Teachers had a 3-1 lead but continued the contest with 5 men winning one and losing one while thus handicapped.

The lineup of the teams were: Teachers—Parker, Kitzman, Miller, Francis, Austin and Lancaster. Presbyterians—Raymond, Rogers, Santee, Hirsch, Larson and Kuhn.

Special mention should be made of the excellent work of the officials, who made the match without a squawk from either team, a difficult feat in a volley ball match as close as this one was. The referee, Schildberg, umpire and scorer, Gigoux.

First Questions Concerning High School Answered

Concerning High School Answered

Q. What system of measurement is used in arriving at the five-mile limit?
A. To date, a definite district has not been located, that is, the lines have not been definitely drawn. In order to get at the figure that has been used in estimating the assessed valuation of the center of the city of Dixon was taken as the center of a circle whose radius was five miles. If this circle took most of the district it was included and if it did not it was not counted when the assessed valuation of $3,222,000 was calculated.

Q. What districts are in the five-mile limit?
A. When the circle was drawn, as indicated in the first question, it included Districts Nos. 170, 3, 163, 6, 31, 29, 30, 172, 22, 32, 26, 208, 2, 4, 5, 7, 9, 34, 171, 205, and 52.

Q. If only a part of a district is in the five-mile limit, is that part to be in for the high school tax?
A. If the line forming the external limit of the proposed community high school district is drawn at a point of a city proposed, high school but would continue to pay the non-high school tax.

ST. PAUL RAILWAY IN HANDS THREE RECEIVERS TODAY

ST. PAUL RAILWAY IN HANDS THREE RECEIVERS TODAY

Friendly Action Taken to Save Financial Status of System.

Chicago, March 18.—(By The Associated Press) Application for a receivership for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. was filed in the U. S. District Court today.

The petition, offered as a friendly action with the company concurring, was filed in District Judge Wilkerson's court.

The receivership climaxes months of uncertainty marked by steady and heavy declines of the market quotations of the road's securities as to the financing of the $48,000,000 of four per cent bonds due next June.

The road, a system of 16,000 miles of tracks, stretching from the Midwest to the Pacific coast, one of the largest in the country, has a funded debt of $43,242,000, $115,374,900 in preferred stock, and $117,411,300 in common stock.

Its Pacific coast extension, carrying electrically driven trains over the Rocky Mountains, has been one of the marvels of railroad engineering, but the road with terminals in Seattle, St. Paul and Chicago, has not returned the profits originally anticipated.

The petition was filed in the name of the Stanley Coal Company, but was in the interest of the road itself, with H. Field, general counsel for the railroad company, present and concurring in the action. There was no opposition.

Asst. Supt. at Cement Plant Given Promotion
Oliver L. Shumard, assistant superintendent of the Dixon plant of the Sandusky Portland Cement company, has received a very worthy elevation in the ranks of the company, and he will leave tomorrow for Toledo, Ohio where he will assume the superintendent of the company's new plant near that place. The plant was put in operation last summer and has a capacity about the same as the Dixon plant.

Mr. Shumard was transferred to Dixon about six years ago, during which time he has served as assistant superintendent continuously. While his stay in Dixon has been brief, he has gathered wide acquaintance who will join in wishing him every success in his new position and congratulate him on his promotion.

Coal and Ashes Hauled in City Must Be Wet Now
Coal haulers and ash haulers who fail to sprinkle until they take the fire limits of the city, will be subject to prosecution under a new ordinance which was adopted by the city council last evening. The ordinance provides that it shall be unlawful to load ashes or unload coal so as to prevent the raising of dust. The penalty provides a fine of not less than $3 and not more than $25.

Henry Morey was awarded the contract for the removal of garbage during the summer months. The application of F. A. Greenleaf to erect a sign at 316 First street was referred to the commissioner of public health and safety with power to act.

CO-OPERATION IS SECURED BY COM- MERCIAL BODIES

Telegraph's Weekly Sur- vey Deals with Such Organizations.

PREAMBLE
This is the ninth of a series of industrial articles which will be published in the TELEGRAPH one each week for fifteen weeks for the purpose of outlining to our local people and to the outside world the vast field of resources and opportunity existing here for advancement and for the promotion of optimism and the right psychology. The facts contained in these articles are absolutely reliable and have been gathered by an expert statistician.

(By V. S. Mullen)
With the intense industrial and commercial development of today, co-operation among the various interests of city and country is an absolute essential for the making of a live productive community. This aim is best served by the organization of the forces that are at hand for the development of commercial possibilities. The promotion of healthfully active commercial organizations is one of the most effective means of accomplishing this purpose.

A large manufacturing plant must be thoroughly organized for the sake of efficiency, with a governing head and various governing bodies of greater or lesser importance. Without these, the plant would accomplish little for the good that students in performance, and through his efforts, the workmen are taught efficiency. Such methods when applied to any kind of plant usually result in a capacity production.

The commercial organizations of a city or country should be the governing body for the purpose of development. The farmers' associations should look after the advancement of scientific farming while the Chamber of Commerce should look after the town's advancement. The Merchants Association should see to the protection of the merchants while such organizations as Rotary and Kiwanis clubs should promote a feeling of good fellowship among the merchants and the farmers and should give an incentive for harder work along the lines of civic improvement.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
President Coolidge has said, "It is not sufficient that men should stand in comfort on their industry alone, however great." It is a part of the philosophy of civilization that an obligation rests upon all qualified men, as soon as a livelihood has been secured, to devote some of their ability to the common welfare. For applying their ability to the best advantage the Chamber of Commerce affords an important and, in many localities, the only agency. It naturally follows that the very highest type of civic activity can be found in the membership of this commercial association.

In times past the Chamber of Commerce largely served a small special interest or group in its community. Practically its entire attention was devoted to securing new industries, conventions, etc. In a few cities, this may still be true of commercial organizations, but generally their functions and purposes have been enlarged until today they take their purview service to the entire community. They cover in their activities matters of housing, health, education and other affairs of a broad social welfare character.

The Chamber of Commerce is the business man's agent through which he expresses his opinion on the public welfare. It offers, at the same time, a practical and enlightened method of reaching a correct opinion. The individual, working alone, cannot attain a high average of sound opinion as will be possible when his efforts are assisted by active membership in a Chamber of Commerce. Thus a Chamber of Commerce provides a local clearing house for the crystallization of well thought out community opinion on subjects of local, state and national scope. As public opinion is the most potent force in the world today, those bearing the responsibility of government naturally give attention to the opinions of Chambers of Commerce.

The Dixon Chamber of Commerce is an outgrowth of an old association which had become defunct and which four years ago was reorganized and affiliated with both state and national associations. There are at the present time about 200 members in good standing and the dues are $25.00 a year. Its purposes are to advance the commercial, mercantile, agricultural and industrial interests in and about Dixon, to cultivate just and equitable principles of trade, to establish, enforce and maintain uniformity in its commercial usages, business transactions and trade relations; and to acquire, possess and disseminate useful business information.

The club has been instrumental in the good roads work of the county, and keep constantly in touch with both state and county highway departments to keep the roads in the best of condition. They maintain a tourist information booth and at present are making plans for the improvement of the free tourist camp which (Continued on Page 2)

WHEAT RALLIES AT OPENING OF TODAY'S TRADING

Jump of Ten Cents a Bushel at Outset of the Bidding.

BULLETIN.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 18.—Secretary Jardine today directed the grain futures administration to make an immediate investigation of the recent violent fluctuations in the market price of wheat.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Mar. 18.—Wheat went skyrocketing today, shooting straight upward ten cents a bushel at the very outset. May touched $1.43 as compared with 1.33 1/4 at yesterday's close. A sharp rise in values at Liverpool preceded the advance here.

Trading was on a tremendous scale with fluctuations correspondingly violent. Within a few minutes the market was back nearly 4c from initial top figures with prices swinging at times between trades.

Almost complete famine of offerings characterized the start in bidding orders were of flood tide and frantic bidding ensued until ten cents a bushel had been added to prices before take their bearings. Then settling down to a more normal level, the market was checked by the backward impetus was checked. May dropped to 1.38 1/4 still 5 cents or more above closing figures of the previous day. A rally of almost 3 cents came instantly.

"DADS" WILL ASK ASSEMBLY TO AID STATE UNIVERSITY

"DADS" WILL ASK ASSEMBLY TO AID STATE UNIVERSITY

Gather at Springfield to Present Wishes to Legislators.

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(By The Associated Press) The "Dads" of the University of Illinois here to lend support to the University appropriation bill, which will be given a hearing before a joint committee of the House and Senate this afternoon, gathered and drew inspiration for this afternoon's tussle.

W. F. Lodge of Monticello, president of the "Dads" struck a decided note in declaring his hope that the University be thrown open to all the world for the good that students from other states and countries could do our boys and girls and that the university might never become provincial in character.

"I should like to see the school grow and lastest of world renown be secured that would bring those thirsting for knowledge from the four corners of the earth to its classes."

Mr. Lodge will make his chief speech before the legislature. Prior to this afternoon, he and other "Dads" have spoken here, to back President Kinley and university officials in their request for appropriation of $10,000,000 for the next two years expenses of the university.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
John H. Camlin of Rockford, president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce was prepared to tell the joint committee, he said, that "the 50,000 or more members of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce endorse the fullest possible financial support of the university by the state, believing that its expansion and development are of the greatest value, and that whatever expenditures may be required to maintain, improve and expand the university and development of our state amply justify the cost."

"As a rule, business is interested in economy in taxation. We believe, however, that in this instance, we are getting full value for our money and that in comparison with other states in cost we are faring rather well."

"I have obtained some comparative statistics as to the cost per head of population for the state university in the last century, in the following states. Here they are:

"Michigan, without agriculture, $2.68, with agriculture college $3.51; Iowa, without agriculture $2.50; with agriculture college $3.66; Minnesota, $3.53; Wisconsin $2.64; and Illinois $1.62.

"Gentlemen, our great state is among the first three of all the states in industrial production and in agriculture. The value of our manufactured products in 1923 being over six billion of dollars while our agricultural products added $800,000,000 more. This great showing could not be maintained and increased, unless we have fully trained experts in all lines to carry on the work. We look to our great universities to do their part in this work and are willing that every facility be given them to accomplish that work."

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Cooking Fruit.

In cooking dried fruits use a pint of fruit to one and one-half pints of water.

Long Soaking.

Dried peas or beans should be soaked for seven or eight hours in cold water before they are cooked.

Don't Cook too Long.

If cabbage, turnips or cauliflower are cooked too long they become dark in color and strong in flavor.

Leather Furniture.

Wash leather furniture with a soft cloth wrung out of hot milk. Polish with a soft cloth.

A Silver Tip.

If silver is washed in plenty of soap and hot water and rubbed dry with soft clean towels each time it is used, the silver will not often require cleaning.

To Make Soap.

All sorts of fats can be clarified and used for soap making, but mutton fat makes the hardest, whitest kind.

To Clarify Fat.

To clarify fat keep it at a gentle

BRINGS YOUTH TO OLD FOLKS

One of Tanlac's greatest blessings is the new life and vigor it brings to old folks. Men and women in the seventies and eighties are writing to us every day to thank us for Tanlac's wondrous benefits.

Tanlac is a natural tonic. It drives poisons from the blood, stirs up the lazy liver and puts digestive organs in working order.

Made after the famous Tanlac formula from roots, barks and rare herbs, it is nature's own tonic and builder—harmless to man or child.

If your body is weakened and run-down, if you lack ambition, can't eat or sleep, you'll be delighted with Tanlac's quick results.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Baked apples, cereal, thin cream, soft cooked eggs, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Oyster soup, toasted bread sticks, lettuce sandwiches, cream puffs, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of beef, baked potatoes, buttered beets, radishes and spring onions, cherry sponge, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

During the maple syrup season try sweetening baked apples with syrup instead of sugar. You will like it.

Serve the greens with the beets, making a mound of the greens in the center of the dish and use the thin beets as a wreath. Season the greens carefully as you do the beets and chop finely before serving.

Who doesn't "love" cream puffs? Filled with a nourishing boiled custard even the four-year-old member of the family may indulge.

Cream Puffs.

One cup boiling water, 1/2 cup butter, 1 cup flour, 3 eggs.

Add butter to boiling water and bring to the boiling point. When bubbling rapidly add the flour all at once and stir vigorously. When thoroughly mixed and perfectly smooth, remove from the fire and let cool. Add eggs, unbeaten, one at a time. Beat each egg thoroughly into mixture before adding another egg. Drop by spoonfuls onto a buttered dripping pan or cookie sheet, making them at least two inches apart. Bake half an hour in moderate oven.

When cool make a cut with a sharp knife in each puff and fill with a rich boiled custard.

Casserole of Beef.

One and one-half pounds round steak, 1 1/2 cups canned tomatoes, 2 carrots, 1 turnip, 2 small onions, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1/2 cup rice, 2 tablespoons salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Trim steak and cut in pieces for serving. Season with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Brown quickly on both sides in a frying pan. Put into a casserole pour over tomatoes and add vegetables cut in small pieces. Sprinkle rice over top and add boiling water to cover. Cover casserole and cook slowly in the oven for two and one-half hours.

Cherry Sponge.

Two cups cherries, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup hot water, 1/2 cup flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add half the sugar gradually and beat until smooth. Add water, remaining sugar and lemon juice. Add flour mixed and sifted with baking powder and salt. Beat well and fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Put cherries in the bottom of a buttered baking dish and cover with batter. Bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes. If cherries are very tart sprinkle with sugar before covering with batter. No sauce is necessary with this pudding.

Chapter A C, Entered on Monday

Chapter A C, Illinois P. E. O., met with Mrs. A. L. Barlow on Monday afternoon, with Mrs. Putnam as assistant hostess. Mrs. Newcomer, the new president, presided, and a busy, useful year's work was planned. Mrs. Judd and Mrs. Putnam gave interesting paper, Mrs. Judd's on American Architecture and Mrs. Putnam's on the Early Life of Calvin Coolidge. Mrs. Mary Jane Kennedy delighted the chapter with a "daffodil dance," accompanied at the piano by her teacher, Miss Frances Campbell.

Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Putnam served dainty refreshments at the close of the program.

Elks Junior Party Friday Evening

One of the most enjoyable events on the Elks' calendar at least to the younger generation, is the Junior party to be held Friday evening at the Elks club house. The party is to assume the form of a masquerade for the young people and much fun is anticipated during the evening. The party is in charge of a ladies' committee, the chairman being Mrs. H. U. Bardwell, and she is assisted by Mesdames Harry Stephan, William Nixon, R. C. Bovey, J. E. Reagan, W. E. Wood, G. A. Campbell.

Prizes are to be awarded the boy wearing the most grotesque costume, and to the girl wearing the most grotesque costume. There will be prizes awarded also for the prettiest costume.

"STOMAX RELIEF" WHY SUFFER

When relief is at your door. We have in "WORMLEY'S STOMAX RELIEF," a remedy for Gastritis, Indigestion, Ulcers of the Stomach and those awful pains after eating.

Among many relieved by WORMLEY'S STOMAX RELIEF is Mr. E. H. Newton of Dixon, Illinois. Read what he has to say:

The Wormley Company, Rochelle, Illinois.

Gentlemen:

I was told that your medicine was giving wonderful results in Stomach Disorders, and urged to try it. I want to say that the results have been all that was claimed for it. I am recommending it to my friends. I remain,

Very truly yours,

OBITUARY

JACOB BROWN

Jacob Brown, son of John and Katharine Brown, was born at Boonsboro, Williams Co., Md. June 26, 1845, and died at his home in Dixon, Ill., March 16, 1925, aged 79 years, 3 months, 20 days.

In 1864 he enlisted in the Union army and served until the end of the Civil War receiving an honorable discharge June 3rd, 1865. Shortly after this he came to Dixon, Ill., and on Oct. 26, 1869 he was united in marriage to Mary Margaret Travis of Polo. To this union were born nine children, three of whom died in infancy.

The remaining six, Mrs. Henry Huff, man of Dixon, George Brown of Polo, Mrs. Will Stauffer of Dixon, Calvin Brown of Dixon, Edw. Brown of Polo and Mrs. Edw. Brown of Chicago, his widow and fifteen grandchildren remain to mourn his departure.

In 1896 he and his companion enlisted in the great army of the United States to fight in the Spanish war.

He has been a faithful Christian living most of his life in Polo and Dixon.

He has now received his last honorable discharge and will quietly wait Him in whose hand is his reward.

The funeral is at 10:00 A. M. Wednesday. Conducted by A. L. Sellers at the Church of the Brethren. Body to be buried in the Pine Creek cemetery.

Enjoyable Elks Party at Oregon Last Eve

The Elks St. Patrick's party given at the Oregon Memorial Coliseum last evening by members of the Dixon lodge residing in that city, was attended by more than 200 couples. The dancing party was in charge of Harry Lohmeyer, George Banning and Carl Strook. A special committee, composed of Frank A. Schoenholz and J. A. Snyder of Dixon had charge of the serving of a delicious buffet luncheon at 11 o'clock and were also responsible for the very attractive decorations in the dining room. The lodge colors of purple and white were carried out throughout the spacious dining hall with green gracing the tables. The Elks have sponsored during the winter and was a huge success in every way.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery and has twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

KINDNESS TO CHILDREN.

Many children have been ruined for life by parents and teachers misinterpreting the new child psychology brought out by great educators.

A conscientious mother reads that the child should not be interrupted in his play, and she lets him leave his toys all over as disorderly room and does the small errands or bits of work the child should do, in order that he may not be "interrupted."

This sort of thing, says Angelo Patri, lover of children and defender of their rights and liberties, is not kindness to the child at all. Mr. Patri demands kindness to the child, sympathy with the child, under any and all circumstances. But, he insists, letting a child monopolize the dinner conversation, when he should be silent and good-mannered, is not kindness. If he is working with his erector set when it is time to help mother get dinner, he should have a table on which he can leave the unfinished creation without disturbing any one. But five minutes before his time to help mother, he should be warned, and he should put away all objects not yet made part of that creation. Allowing disorder is not kindness.

Teaching the child reverence and self-control are the great things, says Mr. Patri. It takes intelligence, perseverance, imagination and self-control on the part of the parent to accomplish it and most parents are none too gifted in these respects. But parenthood is not an instinct. It is a job. The successful parent has to work at his job. If he has got to cultivate self-control in order to teach his child, then it is up to the parent to control himself. True kindness has a strong backbone.

POOR POLITICS.

Probably the United States Senators who voted against the nomination of Mr. Warren for Attorney General and thereby defeated President Coolidge's wishes in the filling of this vacancy in his cabinet are highly pleased with themselves for their action, but we believe the public backs up the President in this matter.

It was a clear demonstration of peanut politics. Bitter partisan feeling was injected and some clever Democratic leaders were astute enough to seize upon this golden opportunity to balk the Republican President, elected by the biggest popular vote ever known.

So far as Mr. Warren is concerned, the charge that he had represented the great sugar corporation presents no damaging evidence against his ability nor his integrity. The great corporations seek out the biggest and finest lawyers and if that rule were to apply to all selections of high officials we would have only the lesser lights to pick from.

We regard the fight on Warren as simply a contemptible piece of partisan politics and particular scorn should be directed at those disgruntled Republicans who let the Democratic side use them in an effort to humiliate the President.

AN OLD LAW.

Supply and demand again. Five thousand qualified physicians, a new dispatch informs you, are tramping the streets of London looking for jobs at anything from $10 a week up.

Some of them sleep at night along the Thames embankment—world-famous resort of down-and-outers.

Tremendous activity among British and Irish medical schools has created a surplus of both men and women physicians since the war, and thousands are confronted with the choice of starving or abandoning a profession to which they have devoted years of training.

The schools are at fault here. Instead of contributing to a condition like this they should say to prospective medical students: "We should like to teach you medicine but the prospects are that you will starve after graduation. Why don't you try the law, or dentistry, or accounting, or something else that offers more opportunity of making a living?"

TESTS.

One thousand freshmen at the Pennsylvania State College this year took a psychological test to determine their general knowledge. They were required to answer 230 questions in 40 minutes.

Results were a little surprising in view of results college girls have been making in scholarship competition with men.

The men students in this test made an average of 83.9 and women students 77.7.

Many men will seize this bit of information as something that will give them a good laugh. Let them—the laugh lately has been so much on the side of the other sex.

A Canadian farmer inherits $650,000 from an English uncle, on condition that he shall "encourage the Sussex Fox Hunt to the best of his ability, and be a member of the same." Let him accept, by all means. Worlds may totter and the heavens fall, but British fox-hunting must be preserved.

The feminine dress problem may be completely solved when a woman can step up to a drygoods counter, buy a yard of cloth and have it pinned on. Styles almost allow that now.

Nature, as a philosopher once remarked, is always imitating are, and we suppose those sailfish that northern visitors are catching in Florida will soon be installing roter fins after the German model.

TOM SIMS SAYS:

Spring is the mating season. The birds mate. But they don't have any house rent or grocery bills.

At last women are becoming men's equal. Here and there you find one who really doesn't want to marry.

Women are nice people. But they sometimes refuse to agree with you in all the things about which you are mistaken.

Many single men think they can enjoy life more with their present habits than they could with a wife.

The female of the spring cleaners isn't as deadly as the male.

Spring fever makes you feel as if you have forgotten something.

BY CHESTER H. ROWELL.

If there is dissatisfaction with the increase of congressional salaries, a curious remedy is at hand.

In 1790, 12 amendments to the Constitution were submitted, 10 of which passed. The other two are still pending, subject to ratification at any time with recommission.

One of them, providing that congressional units shall have at least 50,000 inhabitants in of course long since obsolete, now that they have five times that number.

But the other is startlingly up to date. It provides that no increase in congressional salaries shall take effect until an election has intervened.

If there were really serious opposition, the legislatures now in session, by ratifying that forgotten amendment, could end the whole thing.

Being a president is still a hazardous occupation. Kaiser Wilhelm der Letzte managed to survive 39 years on the throne, and now nearly seven years of exile, in excellent health, but Friedrich Ebert, first president of the German Republic, is dead, after less than six years in office.

Ebert was the product of the first republican upheaval in Germany, before the communist or the monarchist reaction, and he has been, through this trying time, the steadiest and perhaps the wisest force in Germany.

A man of the people, trained as a workman, inn-keeper, newspaper writer and labor union leader, he was so far as could be from the old aristocratic type of German official.

But, by a miracle of good luck, he turned out to be a man of surprising ability, as well as of remarkable soundness of character and temperament.

"The greatest man in Germany," a keen American of exceptional opportunity for observation recently called him. At any rate, the German Republic is his monument.

He took it, a revolutionary wreck and a paper document. He leaves it a going concern.

That, after all, was the greatest achievement of even George Washington.

MORE HOUSES ARE NEEDED

President Coolidge, for all his conservative horror of "Socialism," did not hesitate to recommend a rent limitation law for Washington, and now that his bill has failed in the closing jam, he proposes to resort to court injunctions, or any other plan, to prevent evictions for refusal to pay increased rent.

Then, with more houses, the rent

"Just as I thought," said the March Hare, peepin in.

The March Hare and the Twins went in search of all the circus clowns, and before the week was out they had found every one of them.

By that time all the elephants were scrubbed and the camels were dusted and the trained seals put in practice, and the white horses taught new tricks and the callopes repaired and the wagons painted—and everything. Even the balloons were ready.

And in no time at all, the circus was ready to start on its travels to all the towns and cities where great crowds of people were anxiously waiting.

As the big red wagon bumped along the road, the Circus Man came to the place where the March Hare and the Twins were standing.

"I'm much obliged for your help," he said gratefully. "If it hadn't been for you I never would have known that spring was so near. Down south here where the circus stays in winter, one loses all track of time. Would you like to come with us and have some adventures? Perhaps I could teach you to do a circus act."

Nancy and Nick would have liked to go but the March Hare shook his head. "No, thank you, but I have more work to do. Getting the circus started was only one of the things I was told to do. Besides I'm not much good at acting. I was put into a story book once, something about a fairy, I believe, and that was bad enough. I only behaved foolishly."

"Well, then, good-bye!" said the Circus Man. "Come to see me next year." And he shook hands all around. "No, thank you, but I have more work to do. Getting the circus started was only one of the things I was told to do. Besides I'm not much good at acting. I was put into a story book once, something about a fairy, I believe, and that was bad enough. I only behaved foolishly."

"Good-bye!" called Bimbo the Clown. And he blew them a kiss.

As the principal employer in the district, the government would ultimately have to pay these rents, in either increased salaries or poorer service. Might there not be a way more in accord with practical economics? If rents are held down artificially to a tenancy, I believe, and that was bad enough. I only behaved foolishly."

Present tenants may be taken care of, but newcomers cannot find homes at any price. The only real way to bring rents down is to build more houses.

A great private employer, in the same situation, would go into the housing business.

The government need not do that directly, but a government-financed second mortgage company could do it indirectly.

Then, with more houses, the rent

REAL LEADERS, BUT WHO KNOWS THEM?

Thirty-six years ago, Thomas B. Reed, William McKinley and Joseph G. Cannon were candidates before the Republican caucus for speaker of the fifty-first Congress.

Reed was chosen, but every newspaper reader in America knew—and knows yet—the names of both the defeated candidates also. These were three of the half dozen best-known men in the country.

It is no disparagement to Nicholas Longworth, speaker-designate, Martin Madden, his defeated opponent, and John Q. Hilson, chosen floor leader, to say that, whatever their abilities, their public reputation does not remotely approach that of these predecessors of long ago.

The quality of Congress may or not have declined, but its prestige certainly has.

And yet, all three of these are men of really outstanding careers. Madden, chairman of the committee on appropriations during the era of the establishment of the policies which saved the nations billions.

Longworth, with a career of 20 years of leadership in Congress, of undoubted ability and one of the most popular and genial of men, is probably known to thousands as a son-in-law where he is known to one as a personally distinguished individual.

Tilson, 14 years in Congress, perhaps its most expert parliamentarian, a leader first in military and then in tariff legislation, is scarcely known at all.

These are our leaders; real ones, and capable ones, too. But who knows them? Evidently, something has happened to Congress, to hide its light under a bushel.

BARRE, SON OF KAZAN

James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BARRE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, in an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

Nepeese, daughter of Pierrot, the trapper, carried Barre, the young wolf-dog, from her father's cabin into the woods. She was fearful of the return of McTaggart, the factor, whom, a few minutes before, she had pushed into a twenty-foot chasm when he made unbecomingly advances to her. She met her father, who had learned that McTaggart had blood poison, the result of a bite on the hand by Barre when the factor found the dog in one of his traps.

CHAPTER XV—Continued

It was not like other rains Barre had known. It was an inundation sweeping down out of the blackness of the sky. Within five minutes the interior of the balsam shelter was a shower-bath—half an hour of that torrential downpour, and Nepeese was soaked to the skin. The water ran in little rivulets down her back and breast; it trickled in tiny streams from her drenched braids and dropped from her long lashes, and the blanket under her was wet as a mop. To Barre it was almost as bad as his near-drowning in the stream after his fight with Papayuchisaw, and he snuggled closer and closer under the sheltering arm of the Willow. It seemed an interminable time before the thunder rolled far to the east, and the lightning died away into distant and intermittent flashings. Even after that the rain fell for another hour. Then it stopped as suddenly as it had begun.

With a laughing gasp Nepeese rose to her feet. The water gurgled in her moccasins as she walked out into the open. She paid no attention to Barre—and he followed her. Across the open in the tree-tops the last of the storm-clouds were drifting away.

Nepeese looked down and saw Barre. He was standing clear and unashamed, with freedom on all sides of him. Yet he did not run. He was waiting, wet as a water-shot like a slim white arrow through the starlight.

Barre saw her go. He heard the plunge of her body. For half an hour he lay flat and still, close to the edge of the pool, and watched her. Sometimes she was just under him, floating silently, her hair forming a cloud darker than the water about her; again she was cutting over the surface almost as swiftly as the others he had seen—and then with a sudden plunge she would disappear, and Barre's heart would quicken its pulse as he waited for her. Once she was gone a long time. He whined. He knew she was not like the beaver and the otter, and he was filled with an immense relief when she came up.

So their first night passed—storm, the cool, deep pool, the big fire; and later, when the Willow's clothes and the blanket had dried, a few hours' sleep. At dawn they returned to the cabin. It was a cautious approach. There was no smoke coming from the chimney. The door was closed. Pierrot and Bush McTaggart were gone.

CHAPTER XVI

It was the beginning of August—the Flying-bird Moon—when Pierrot returned from Lac Bain, and in three days more it would be the Willow's seventeenth birthday. He brought back with him many things for Nepeese—ribbons for her hair, real shoes, which she wore at times like the two Englishwomen at Nelson House, and chief glory of all, some wonderful red cloth for a dress. In the three winters she had spent at the Mission these women had made much of Nepeese. They had taught her to sew as well as to spell and read and pray, and at times there came to the Willow a compelling desire to do as they did.

So for three days Nepeese worked hard on her new dress and on her birthday she stood before Pierrot in a fashion that took his breath away. She had piled her hair in great glowing masses and coils on the crown of her head, as Yvonne, the younger of the Englishwomen, had taught her, and in the rich jet of it had half buried a vivid sprig of the crimson fire-flower. Under this, and the glow in her eyes, and the red flush of her lips and cheeks came the wonderful red dress, fitted to the slim and sinuous beauty of her form—as the style had been two winters ago at Nelson House. And under the dress, which reached just below the knees—Nepeese had quite forgotten the proper length, or else her material had run out—came the coup de maître of her toilet, real stockings and the wonderful shoes with high heels! She was a vision before which the gods of the forests might have felt their hearts stop beating. Pierrot turned her round and round without a word, but smiling; but when she left him, followed by Barre, and limping a little in the tightness of her shoes, the smile faded from his face, leaving it cold and staring.

There was a change in Pierrot. During the three days of her dress-making Nepeese had been quite too excited to notice this change, and Pierrot had tried to keep it from her. He had been away ten days on the trip to Lac Bain, and he brought back to Nepeese the joyous news that M'sieu McTaggart was very sick with pechipo—the blood-poison—news that made the Willow clap her hands and laugh happily. But he knew that the Factor would get well, and that he would come again to their cabin on the Gray Loon. And when next time he came—

It was when he was thinking of this that his face grew cold and hard, and his eyes burned. And he was thinking of it on this his birthday, and even as her laughter floated to him like a song. Dieu, in spite of her seventeen years, she was nothing but a child—a baby! She could not guess his horrible visions. And the dread of awakening her for all time from that beautiful childhood kept him from telling her the whole truth so that she might have understood fully and completely. Non, it should not be that. His soul beat with a great and gentle love. He, Pierrot Du Quebec, would do the watching. And she should laugh and sing and play—and have no share in the black forebodings that had come to spoil his life.

On this day there came up from the south McDonald, the government map-maker. He was gray and grizzled, with a great, free laugh and a clean heart. Two days he remained with Pierrot. He told Nepeese of his daughters at home, of their mother, whom he worshipped more than anything else on earth—and before he went on in quest of the last timber-line of Banksian pine, he took pictures of Willow as he had first seen her on her birthday: her hair piled in glossy coils and masses, her red dress, the high-heeled shoes. He carried the negatives on with him, promising Pierrot that he would get a picture back in some way. Thus fate works in its strange and apparently innocent way as it spins its web of tragedy.

Vacuum cleaner magic

Producing rabbits from thin air is a simple stunt compared with what our expert cleaner men can do with the Hamilton Beach Vacuum Sweeper. The jumping dollars, the snapping thread, and the fluttering carpet, are a few of the trick demonstrations they can show you.

But frankly, such stunts don't prove very much, because vacuum sweepers are bought to clean rugs and carpets, easily, quickly, and thoroughly. This is the greatest trick any cleaner can do. We recommend it as the standard by which to compare. You run the cleaner yourself, on your own fine rug. Then you empty the bag. The dirt you remove makes decision easy.

THE BETTER PAINT STORE

(By V. S. Mullen.)

The charm of a modern home lies in the taste and artistry of its decorations. By your home people judge you—your taste for beauty or the lack of it—your character. In it you may have individuality, color without harshness, picturesqueness, graceful lines, beauty that will not fade.

That the American home of today is better designed and more tastefully furnished than that of a generation ago is due in no small degree to the efforts of the architect, the interior decorator, and the establishment of exclusive stores which specialize in furnishing the necessary materials and giving suggestions that when followed out result in more harmonious effects.

To succeed in getting the desired effects in home decoration, assistance is oft times needed in choosing the correct color scheme as well as the proper materials. In Dixon this service is best supplied by the Better Paint Store, located at 222 West First street.

This firm, which is one of the newer additions to Dixon's retail district, was first established here a little more than a year ago, the first location being in the Beier's bakery building. However, in September of the past year, the present desirable location was secured.

Mr. L. H. Tibbits, proprietor of the store, specialized for years in interior decorating and gained much valuable experience in color harmony and the various details of conducting a business of this nature, and, by reason of this experience, is able to offer the patrons of this firm many new ideas and give them many helpful suggestions in any phase of decoration.

The merchandise offered by this store is the very best the market affords, Mr. Tibbits being careful to choose from only those lines which he could personally guarantee and which if properly used, would be sure to give satisfactory results. The paint and varnish lines feature the nationally known products of Devco & Reynolds and S. C. Johnson & Sons, and includes everything that a painter could possibly use in either interior or exterior decorating.

The wall paper stock carried by this firm is also unusually comprehensive offering in excess of 2,000 patterns to select from in all the very latest designs and color effects. The necessary tools such as brushes, scrapers, shears, rollers, etc., that would be used in applying either paint or paper will also be found here.

The Artist's materials department has lately been enlarged to include a full line of Jesscraft supplies and outfits and free instruction in this delightful art of Plaque making is given in the store Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays from 3:00 to 6:00 P. M.

The Greeting Card department includes cards for all occasions as well as tally, place cards, mottoes, party favors and playing cards.

Another line of service offered by the firm is the cutting and installation of window glass, supplying, as they do, everything from small basement sash to large plate glass for store fronts. In the case of residential work, their service includes calling for the frames, cutting and installing the glass and delivering them ready for use.

The new firm has been welcomed into the business life of Dixon and promises to be an influential factor in the development of the retail trading possibilities of the city.

Wall Paper Season is now at hand and our Spring stocks are complete. We have over 2000 patterns to select from and pattern for pattern our prices are the lowest. We also have in stock a wide selection of Strahn papers, which are of the highest quality obtainable. We urgently suggest that you inspect our samples for immediate or future use. Our service is courteous and incurs no obligation to purchase.

Neckdress After Six

Around evening dress hovers, somehow, the gracious glamor of the days when Ye Gallant Gentleman drew his burnished blade for the smile of My Ladye Fayre and knights flung their cloaks over puddles for queens to tread on. Evening clothes are the turnout of courtliness and elegance; the expression of life's gentler moments, when a man unbends and becomes as Byron cynically wrote, one of society's "polished horde, formed of two mighty tribes—the Bored and Bored." Correctness in day dress is often a matter of personal preference. Correctness in evening dress is a matter of strict, almost inflexible, rule. When a man assumes "inky worsted and snowy linen," he loses his identity as an individual and becomes, very much as the soldier in his regimentals, a private in the army of society, subject to rigid discipline in dress and deportment.

It is a heartening fact that Americans are both wearing evening clothes more and that more Americans are wearing evening clothes. Formerly reserved for high and rare occasions, when a man "simply couldn't get out of it," evening dress is now worn as a pleasure, rather than as a duty. And, wearing it more often, we wear it more smartly, for practice lends ease and self-assurance. Hence, you are well advised to seek, not shun, every occasion when ceremonious clothes are prescribed.

As Tuxedo dress is not informal, but semi-formal, an important distinction, the proper collar to wear is the wing. The double-band shape, though tolerated, is not in the best form and its use is decreasing. Moreover, the wing is an agreeable change from the monotony of wearing turn-down collars, which, with evening clothes, give the neck a short, stubby look that is not at all prepossessing. If you are particular to choose the right height and shape in a wing collar, you will not find it uncomfortable. Then, too, it makes the wearer hold his head high, instead of letting it slump into his collar, as though he were trying to hide his face.

The three types of tuxedo collars and ties sketched here represent what is generally worn this season. The first is the moderately spaced wing together with the narrow-knot, wide-end tie. The second is the broad-spaced wing, together with the full-knot, wide-end tie. The third, a shape that is more popular than proper, is the turn-over, pointed-tip collar together with a tie that is drawn up right-and-tight against the neckband. The last-named shape, though shown, is not recommended.

TOMORROW—Telegrams exchanged between John Alden Prescott and Leslie Prescott.

TELEPHONE MESSAGE FROM MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

"I can not understand, John, why I have not heard from you this morning. At what time are you coming to take me to the train?"

"You are not going to take the morning train? You are not sure we will go today? What do you mean? Here I am all packed up, my bonnet on, and my outside wrap on a chair. I have already had Miss Anderson send my trunk to the station."

"Why should I wait for you to do that?"

"I thought I would relieve you of as much worry as possible. I must say, Jack, that you are very inconsistent of me. You should have thought of me the first thing when you thought it might be impossible to take me to Atlantic City today. What is the matter? Is it business?"

"I must say, Jack, that I think you are altogether too much attention to your business. There is no reason why you could not have put off whatever is keeping you here and taken me to Atlantic City to-day. Your mother and your wife are entitled to some of your time. Have you told Leslie that you are not coming today?"

"Oh, that is the reason, is it? Leslie has been called unexpectedly to Albany. She probably left Atlantic City because she knew you were taking me over. I must say Leslie is more inconsiderate of me than even you are. What could have been more important to her than a visit of her husband and her husband's mother? She certainly should have waited for us. She knew I was anxious to go there."

"Don't speak so impatiently, John. I don't want to go to Atlantic City without you."

"I'm not going, John. I'm crying because my only child for whom I have sacrificed so much has treated me with such great disrespect. "Oh I beg your pardon. I didn't know you wanted me to say goodbye. That you had a long distance call in. Most sons would think they might wait until their mother had finished talking. All right, I'm used to being set aside for anything by you. No, I will not call you up again. If you wish to speak with me, you will find me here waiting for you. I shall tell Miss Anderson to go down to the station and send the trunks back."

"All right, I'll leave them there for a while if you think best. I suppose you understand that you have made me a great deal of trouble and set my nerves on edge and set my heart thumping. No one seems to realize, not even you, that the slightest excitement is very bad for my heart."

"Call me up when you have made your plans. I shall probably not be able to leave my apartment today even if you wish to go to Atlantic City later. Goodbye, my son, I'll try and not be too unhappy over your habitual neglect."

SIR DUDLEY GLENISTER, suspected of murder when a crowd drops a skeleton finger on his lands, is further involved when a searching party finds the body of Sir Dudley's missing cousin, and—

STEPHEN COLINE, former cabinet minister, tells James Wragge, Scotland Yard detective, assigned to the case, that Sir Dudley had faked evidence to the effect that the cousin had died in Montana, United States.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Is that the Harley Street nerve specialist, sir?"

"Yes. Do you know him?"

"Not in the sense of his being known to the police. I consulted him once as a patient."

Mr. Coline laughed.

"You with nerves, Wragge?" he said.

"You forget, sir, an occasion on which they were somewhat highly tried," he replied with a certain dignity.

Mr. Coline regarded the speaker from under half-closed lids. "Oh, that?" he said, as if with an effort recalling some bygone incident. "I was not aware that you were so hard hit as that, Wragge, but as you have referred to that little lapse I will take advantage of the opening to impress upon you that this Glenister case must be conducted along the line indicated."

"I am not likely to do anything detrimental to my career in the force, Mr. Coline. I gathered from the newspaper reports that Mr. George Glenister left England on bad terms with his father. It might help if you could throw any light on the cause of their quarrel. A woman at the bottom of it, possibly?"

Mr. Coline raised his eyebrows.

"Really, Wragge, you jump too readily to conclusions," he replied.

"Drop that line like a live coal. The cherchez la femme wheeze doesn't hold here. Old Sir Philip Glenister and his young hopeful came to loggerheads over a much more prosaic matter—pounds, shillings and pence."

"The Inspector rose from the chair. "Thank you, Mr. Coline," he said. "You have saved me a lot of spade work and I will get busy at once. I must go back to town this afternoon and start on Sir Dudley's record at his former City office, but first I can put in a useful hour or two at Beechwood. I should like to see the headkeeper who conducted the search party, and if I could run up against Doctor Willoughby Melville I might play on his sympathy for an ex-patient."

CHAPTER VII

The Red-Nosed Blackmailer

THE same train which brought Inspector Wragge to Colbrook Towers deposited at the wayside station another passenger for whom no grand motor-car was waiting.

Not a prepossessing person by any means was the middle-aged, fleshily dressed individual bearing down on Sir Dudley Glenister's country seat.

He must take up life resolutely and put it decisively into Christ's enterprise, to be and to do all that an unfolding sense of duty may reveal."

FORMER TEACHER IN LEE COUNTY'S SCHOOLS IS CALLED

Mrs. H. E. Fairchild of Garden Grove, Calif.,
Died Feb. 11th.

Scarbore—Mr. and Mrs. C. R. White of Compton were in town Friday.

Little Wilbur Thompson is suffering from an attack of measles.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Smith were over Sunday visitors at Rockford at the W. Wagner home.

Miss Dorothy Durin who attends school at Mt. Morris was home over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Schoenholz and children were Sunday guests at the J. B. Cave home.

Miss Lucinda Preston of Steward was an over Sunday visitor at the Fred Wagner home.

Mrs. G. W. Durin and daughter were in Rockford Saturday.

A social gathering at the hall Saturday night was enjoyed by all present.

Death entered the home of H. E. Fairchild at Garden Grove, Cal., Feb. 11, 1925 and took from its portals Mrs. H. E. Fairchild, aged 68 years, three months and three days.

Margaret Van Patten was born Nov. 8, 1856 in DeKalb county, Ill., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Van Patten. She was the eldest of 15 children, six of whom preceded her to the great beyond. Mrs. Fairchild's parents moved from DeKalb county to a farm in Lee county when Margaret was ten years old. Here she grew to womanhood and attended the district school until she was old enough to attend the seminary at East Paw Paw, Ill., where she spent two years. From there she went to the university of Valparaiso, Ind., for one year. Margaret Van Patten, as she was familiarly known, was a teacher in the public schools of Lee county for a number of years. She was married to Herman E. Fairchild, March 18, 1880. They lived on a farm in Lee county for two years and then they migrated to Custer, Colo., where Mrs. Fairchild again taught in the public schools for a couple of years. The altitude was too high for her there so they moved to Keith county, Neb., where they homesteaded about four miles north of Big Springs. They resided there until October, 1899 when they found that the North river country provided more opportunity for the work they wished to undertake so they moved to the place where Belmont is now located. Here they lived on their ranch until 1921. The ranch work becoming too hard for them in their declining years they decided to spend the winters in a warmer climate, so they located on an English Walnut ranch at Garden Grove, Cal. Mrs. Fairchild's health has been very poor for a number of years. She had consulted many specialists and was a patient at Mayo brothers hospital several years ago. However, her health has been especially good the past year until Feb. 6 when she was stricken with chronic parenchymatous nephritis from which she gradually sank until the end came peacefully on Feb. 11. She leaves to mourn her demise her husband, aged 68, three daughters Mrs. W. J. Clark of Lewellyn, Neb., Mrs. H. L. Peterson, Lamoyne, Neb., Mrs. Ford Knobel of Fremont, Neb., four sons, Frank of Garden Grove, Cal., Fred of Lewellyn, Neb., Howard and Clarence of Belmont, Neb., also six sisters and brothers who are Mrs. G. W. Lattin, Fallon, Nev., Mrs. W. F. Briggs, Portland, Ore., S. E. Van Patten, Van Nuys, Cal., Mrs. J. F. Juddridge, Hobart, Okla., Mrs. P. J. Schoenholz, Scarbore, Ill., Mrs. W. R. Nicolls, Beaver Dam, Wis., Frank Van Patten, Chicago, Mrs. J. N. Norris, Long Island, N. Y., besides 12 grandchildren and a host of friends. She was known as a wonderful home woman who took little part in public affairs and who always lived a true christian life. She united with the Methodist church early in life to which she remained faithful. Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at Lewellyn, Neb., Feb. 17 at 1:30 p. m. by Rev. Frank Esterbrook taking his text from chapter four of the fourteenth verse of James. The choir very touchingly sang "Vale of Enslaved" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Morris Clary very tenderly sang "Face to Face." The pallbearers were Dan Kelly, Link Smith, Peter Misen, George Williams, George Clark, Morris Clary. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Interment was made in the family lot at Ash Hollow cemetery.

Sleep dear mother, sleep,
Within thy peaceful tomb
For thou no more shalt weep.
Thy Lord hath called thee home.
Sleep, dear mother, sleep,
For thou art now at rest.

Thy spirit hath departed
To sing with all the rest.
Sleep, dear mother, sleep.
No one can harm thee there
Till the earth thy dust shall keep
Till it arise all fair.

New Grocery Store is Opened in Oregon

Oregon—D. E. Seyster opened his new grocery store Saturday in the building which he recently purchased on Washington street. It was formerly occupied by the Swiney jewelry store. Mr. Seyster has been engaged in the grocery business in Oregon a great number of years and just recently dissolved partnership with the Murdock brothers to establish a business for himself. He is a fine business man, very accommodating and always found to be the 16 ounce to the pound variety, so no doubt will have good patronage. American Beauty roses were given to the customers Saturday. Miss Helen Haas who is employed in the Carson, Pile Scott store in Chicago, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haas. R. W. Thorpe spent Monday and Tuesday in Chicago attending the Rex all convention held at the Sherman hotel. Fred Harris went to Rochelle Monday morning to be manager of a hardware store. He expects to move his family there the middle of next month. Ted Seyster who is attending the University of Illinois, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Seyster. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grimes and children spent Sunday in Rockford. The Fortnightly club met at the home of Mrs. Richard Dolden Monday night. A card party and dance will be given in the Masonic hall Thursday evening by the Eastern Star. The Elks are giving a dance in the Oregon Coliseum Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ziegler and son returned Thursday from California where they have spent the winter. They were delighted with California. The trip was made in their auto. Miss Mabel Stauffer history teacher in the high school was able to return to her work Monday after a three weeks absence due to an abscess in her nose. Grover Stroth spent Saturday in Chicago.

From the makers of Flexible Housetops, Viskit Membrane Roofs, Viskote, and similar products.

The Super-Giant—50% thicker, 100% more rigid, and 35% more economical in cost of laying.

A beautiful new color in slate on a 50% thicker shingle!

A NEW and exclusive color in slate on a shingle of unusual endurance is now available for your home.

This rare new color, weathered brown, is as beautiful as the subdued russet of autumn fields. It is especially pleasing when blended with other Richardson shingles of jade green, tile red, or black pearl.

The new weathered brown is used only on the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle—a remarkably improved roofing product.

Its greater size (10" x 14") saves you 35% in cost of laying. Its 50% greater thickness makes it last much longer. Its 100% greater stiffness keeps it rigid and firm in all kinds of weather. Moreover its inner materials, Richardson felt and Viskalt, assure lasting beauty for your roof.

Come in and see this super-shingle and the other Richardson roofing products. Or, if more convenient, just telephone and we will come to you.

AN ATTRACTION EXTRAORDINARY

It is with mingled pride and pleasure that I am able to announce the advent of what I firmly believe to be the red letter event in the theatrical history of this city.

This attraction is designed for Broadway. So successful was the brief tour on the road, readying the production for its metropolitan premiere, that its owners decided to allot a few additional weeks to the cities in this section before inaugurating the New York run.

The Manhattan engagement is set for early next month and this city will be one of the few in the country that sees FLASHES OF THE GREAT WHITE WAY before Gotham flashes it. This is the only time within ken that a genuine New York bound musical revue has been booked in this city.

Press and confidential trade reports that have reached me are of such a laudatory nature that I have no hesitancy in placing
